Adjournment of Congress Hangs On Civil Rights

Speedy Passage of Compromise Bill Predicted by Top Leaders

WASHINGTON (UP) — Congress today held the key to adjournment — a bipartisan agreement to a compromise civil rights bill.

Speedy passage of the measure was predicted by all four top congressional leaders. Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland and House GOP Leader Joseph Martin Jr. said President Eisenhower would sign the bill.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said he expected the 1957 session of the 85th Congress now would be able to adjourn sine die by the end of next week.

Though southerners opposed the compromise bill with its modified jury trial amendment, they were not expected to try and stop it with a filibuster for fear of having to fight stiffer rights legislation next year.

May Vote Tuesday

The House Rules Committee, which for two weeks has bottled up the much rewritten bill, is expected to act Monday so the House can vote on it Tuesday.

In a series of conferences Friday, Democrats and Republicans worked out a compromise to guarantee jury trials only in major criminal contempt cases resulting from violations of court injunctions to protect voting rights. A federal judge would have discretion to try minor violations with or without a jury.

The compromise also spelled out penalties in minor cases. With a jury trial the maximum would be six months in jail, a $1,000 fine or both. If the judge in a non-jury trial imposed more than a 45-day jail term or $300 fine, then the defendant could demand and be guaranteed a jury trial.

Other congressional news:

FBI Files: The Senate hoped to reach a vote Monday on legislation to protect the sanctity of FBI files after agreeing to limit debate on the measure. The bill would restrict the Supreme Court's recent decision granting defendants in certain criminal cases the right to inspect FBI reports of government witnesses used against them. The bill would require the government to produce only written statements or records of oral statements made by the witness that would be pertinent to his testimony.

Appropriations: Congress passed and sent to President Eisenhower the last two major appropriations bills of the session—$2,323,632,000 for the Atomic Energy Commission and $1,743,011,947 for military construction. The AEC bill carried funds for federal construction of five atomic reactors. The military construction measure was cut more than 230 million dollars below the President's request.

TVA: Senate Democrats hoped to block congressional approval of President Eisenhower's appointment of Arnold Jones to the Tennessee Valley Authority board. They indicated they wanted to force Eisenhower into giving a recess appointment to Jones, now deputy director of the budget. In

West Brownsville Police Problem In Settlement

A settlement has been reached in the controversy between Mel Deskins, West Brownsville chief of police, and West Brownsville Borough Council.

Deskins will receive approximately $1,168 in back pay.

Deskins also turned in his resignation with an indication from council that it would be accepted. Council agreed to pay the court costs, which have not been determined.

At a special council meeting, it was decided to pay Deskins $2.67 a day. This was based on a borough ordinance which states that a policeman may not be paid more than $2.67 a day. The payments are effective from June 8, 1956, when the Washington County common pleas court ordered the reinstatement of Deskins.

When Deskins and his attorney, W. C. Porter, Washington, agreed to the terms, set by council, Judge Roy I. Carson handed down an order putting them into effect. The court also dismissed a petition by Deskins' attorney, charging council with contempt of court for failing to follow a court ruling to pay him "the amount due him."

Judge Carson also said all further disputes between the two parties must be settled by the attorneys involved instead of the court.

Borough Solicitor Austin Murphy said the retirement of Deskins would cost the borough nothing since the state sends the borough money for the police pension fund.

Deskins was retired by council last year but was ordered reinstated last November by the county court. Council appealed the ruling but it was upheld by the state Supreme Court.

Talks to Resume In Glass Dispute

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Negotiations will resume in Pittsburgh on Aug. 29, in an effort to avert a threatened strike of 2,000 members of the American Flint Glass Workers Union.

Commissioner William Rose of the Federal Mediation Service announced Friday he would resume talks which broke off in Atlantic City last Tuesday in a complete deadlock.

Rose said the principal issues in the threatened walkout, which would affect some 31 companies involved wages and insurance and pension programs.

He added that a 10 day strike by the workers last year caused some 50,000 other glass working employes to be idle.

Elma Elizabeth Florine

ENJOYS FIRST ICE CREAM SODA—"Italy was never like this," Elizabeth Farneti, a foreign exchange student from Italy, said yesterday as she sipped her first ice cream soda. Elizabeth, of Gibbio, Italy, arrived in the United States last week. She enjoyed the soda served by Elma Louise Cekola with Florine Komatz. Elizabeth will live with Florine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Komatz, while attending Monessen High School this term. She said they have ice cream in Italy but no sodas. "It sort of makes your nose tickle, doesn't it?" she said with a giggle.

Italian Exchange Student Is Anxious for School to Start

"The American way of life is very different than the Italian way — but I think I am going to enjoy you Americans and your beautiful country," a charming 17-year-old Italian girl said yesterday as she joined the family of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Komatz, of 22 Washington Dr., Monessen.

Monessen's newest "citizen" is Elizabeth Farneti of Gubbio, Italy, an exchange student who will attend Monessen High School this term. She is one of 700 exchange students from throughout the world who are taking part in the American Field Service International Scholarships program.

The brunette with sparkling dark eyes, said she is anxiously looking forward to her stay with the Komatz family and the teachers and students she will meet.

In Monessen only a few days, she already is different than most students her age — stating she can hardly wait until school opens.

Happy to Come

She will stay with the Komatz family until next June when she will return to her native Italy with a high school diploma and, no doubt, a countless string of exciting events indelibly impressed on her mind.

She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Farenti. Her father is a veterinarian and her mother a school teacher. She has a sister Gloria and two brothers, Napoleone and Bruno.

District Farmers Cop More Honors At County Fair

Monessen district farmers yesterday continued to reap honors at the Westmoreland County Fair being held this week at Mutual near Mt. Pleasant. The Fair, which opened Tuesday, closes tonight.

At swine judging Thursday, George Shupe of West Newton won seven first prizes for the following: Berkshire boar one-year and over, boar over three months and under six months, sow over three months and under six months (two prizes), sow one year and over, champion Berkshire male, and champion Berkshire female.

In the food division, Mrs. Louis Thompson of Belle Vernon won 13 awards. She was first in blackberry jellies, first in apple jelly, third in berry preserves, first in peach preserves, third in tomatoes, second on green tomatoes, third in yellow peaches, first in caned beets, first in onions, third in winter squash, first in Marglobe tomatoes, first in pink tomatoes and second in yellow tomatoes.

Ronald Leasure of R. D. 1, West Newton, won third prize for California peppers and Eleanor Stark of R. D. 2, Belle Vernon, was first in the pumpkin squash patty-pan division.

Basic Training Instructors Face Abuse Charges

FORT CARSON, Colo. (UP) — An unspecified number of basic training instructors at this Army post will be court martialed on charges of physically abusing recruits.

A Fort Carson spokesman revealed Friday that 'enough evidence of physical mistreatment . . . or beating" of basic trainees in Company I of the 39th Infantry Regiment has been gathered to 'make court martial charges applicable."

The spokesman did not say how many trainees were mistreated or how many cadremen face court martial. He did say that the mistreatment resulted in 'very slight physical harm."

It was believed, however, that at least six instructors would face charges. The instructors involved were transferred out of Company I, to another unit in the division, about two weeks ago when the first complaints of recruit beatings were made.

Charges will be preferred "sometime early next week, probably Monday," the Army spokesman said.

Active Week for Boys' Brigade

The Monessen Boys' Brigade Drum and Bugle Corps will participate in three events next week.

They will appear at Mt. Pleasant Tuesday, Rostraver Twp. Fair Wednesday and Monessen Fire Department Street Fair parade Thursday.

The unit has won 19 prizes in 20 parades this year.

Three Girls' Bodies Are Found in Quarry

DIXON, Ill. (P)—A group of workmen found the bodies of three small sisters early today in a floodlighted, muddy quarry.

The girls, Nancy, 10, Theresa, 8, and Ruthie Guernsey, 9, had been missing since last Wednesday afternoon when they were seen playing at the rim of the 50 - foot quarry.

A small army of workers had shoveled through the night against a maddening sea of mud, while floodlights pierced a heavy fog which shrouded the hilly timberland.

Police said there were no signs the girls had met foul play. All were found lying fully clothed under a massive tree, one of the many authorities had been hauling out of the clay mire since Friday night.

National Guardsmen, state police, deputies and hundreds of volunteers had trudged through the surrounding area Friday, when one of them "happened to kick up" a sandal belonging to one of the girls.

Digging operations began shortly afterwards, uncovering the other five shoes, the little girls' socks neatly tucked inside. Mr. and Mrs. John Guernsey, parents of the girls, identified the shoes as those of their daughters.

Dixon Police Commissioner Fred Hofmann doubted foul play but cited the possibility the girls may have been playing along the slope of the quarry, perhaps in a pocket, and were buried under a landslide. A nearby cement plant had been filling in the pit with tons of clay and sand the day of the disappearance.

Hofmann said 75 to 85 workers manning hand shovels had been gnawing into the saucer-shaped pit, aided by two tractors and three cranes, but that torrential afternoon rains had increased their work a hundred-fold.

The little girls were seen playing near the lip of the quarry Wednesday by a shovel operator. Other workmen were around at the time, Hofmann said, which made the idea of foul play improbable.

He could offer no reason, however, why the sisters had removed their shoes, there being no ponds nearby in which they could go wading.

AFL-CIO to Ask Hoffa, Teamster Union, About Senate Racket Charges

Ike Serves as Co-pilot on Trip to Farm

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP) — President Eisenhower served as his own co-pilot today, flying himself part of the way from Washington to his farm here.

The Chief Executive was in the co-pilot's seat as the twin-engined Aero-Commander used by the White House for short hops landed on the grassy Gettysburg Airport after a 24-minute flight from Washington.

The actual landing was handled by Col. William G. Draper, Air Force aide to the President and regular White House pilot.

Draper, however, confirmed that Eisenhower, who once held a pilot's license, actually flew the plane part of the way from Washington.

"He does a real flying job," Draper said. He added that the President took over the controls only for a few minutes.

The President sat beside Draper throughout the flight in the seat normally occupied by an Air Force co-pilot who was aboard another plane today.

Eisenhower trained and qualified as a pilot during the 1930's when he was stationed as an Army officer in the Philippines, but has not actually had full control of a plane for years. On presidential flights, he sometimes visits the pilot's compartment and sits at the controls. But today was unusual in that he took over the controls himself.

Chrysler Rejects Reuther Bid to Cut Car Prices

DETROIT (UP)—United Auto Workers President Walter P. Reuther said today he was "not surprised" that Chrysler followed the lead of General Motors in rejecting his proposal to fight inflation by cutting new car prices.

"GM, having made the decision first, has in effect dictated the policy, as it has in every such major policy decision for the last 20 years," Reuther said.

"We are frankly not surprised that Chrysler has thus evaded a responsibility after GM took the same position." he said.

The flurry of statements from Reuther and auto industry leaders followed Reuther's letters of last Friday to the presidents of GM, Chrysler and Ford. He asked the industry's "big three" to drop prices of 1958 model cars at least $100 to curb spiralling prices.

Reuther said that, in return, the UAW would "consider" the results of the price cuts when it presents its new contract demands next year.

GM President Harlow H. Curtice was the first to answer Reuther. In rejecting the proposal, Curtice said that if the UAW was serious about curbing inflation a good way to do it would be to extend the current three - year contracts another two years.

Trolley Strike Is Authorized

PITTSBURGH (UP) — The city's bus and trolley operators have authorized their union leaders to call a strike midnight Aug. 31 unless they have a new wage contract by then.

Members of Division 85, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach employes, voted 1,148 to 61 Friday to reject the Pittsburgh Railways Company's latest wage offer and authorize the strike.

The company offer called for a two-year contract providing for a 5 cents an hour increase this year and another 5 cents in 1958. The raise, however, was contingent on the company's getting a fare increase by next Oct. 17. The present hourly wages of the 2,200 members of the union is $2.14.

Firemen were called to quell a minor brush fire near the First Methodist Church on Fourth St. yesterday about 2 p. m.

Firemen arrived via Parkway. No damage was reported by Chief W. Roy McShaffrey.

Hoffa Discharged by Senate Group; Can't Remember Past

WASHINGTON (UP) — The AFL-CIO will demand that the Teamsters Union answer charges made by the Senate Rackets Committee against Teamster Vice President James R. Hoffa, informed sources said today.

The committee, adjourning in disbelieving exasperation, left Hoffa alone with his dim memories and bright chances of becoming president of the nation's biggest union.

The committee discharged Hoffa Friday, handing him only a subpena for his personal records and telling him to come back later for more questions. But informed sources believed he would not be recalled until after the union's convention Sept. 30, when Hoffa is expected to succeed Dave Beck, who is retiring as president in the wake of committee charges that he misused more than $300,000 of union funds.

Corruption Charges Readied

Before the convention, the Teamsters are in trouble with the big labor federation. The AFL - CIO Ethical Practices Committee meets Sept. 5-6 to consider charges that the Teamsters are dominated by corrupt influences.

At that time, labor sources said, it will sock the Teamsters with the 48-point bill of particulars compiled by the Senate committee, accusing Hoffa of associating with —and using—gangsters, goons and gunmen in his rise to power and engaging in "questionable" financial deals.

On Sept. 24-25—still prior to the Teamster convention — the AFL-CIO Executive Council will convene in special session in New York to act on the report of its Ethical Practices Committee. The council has power to order the Teamsters to clean house or face expulsion from the AFL-CIO.

The Teamsters' own executive board—with Hoffa a member — is scheduled to meet Monday in Los Angeles to consider a reply to charges already brought by the ethical practices group.

McClellan Halts Questioning

Senate Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) halted the questioning of Hoffa in its fourth day, saying it had proceeded "to the point where the witness has no memory" and it would be "a waste of time" to continue.

Hoffa's answers had faded to a theme of "I don't remember" as the questions grew tougher—questions about his relations with his friend Johnny Dio, convicted New York labor racketeer; about charges that he allied with Dio to set up hoodlum - staffed phony locals to seize control of the Teamsters in New York; about charges of a long-continued association with gangsters, extortionists and goons.

He hit some sort of peak when asked whether he fitted witnesses with minature wire recorders so he could hear their testimony to a Detroit grand jury.

"To the best of my recollection I just recall on my memory I cannot remember," said Hoffa.

Fire Department Fair Opens Monday

The Monessen Volunteer Fire Department will hold a week-long street fair beginning Monday at 7 p. m.

The affair will be held in the parking lot between Second and Fourth streets.

The fair will be climaxed by a huge parade Thursday night.

'Gorgeous' Woman Sought by Police In Mystery Death

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Police searched today for a "gorgeous" red-haired woman and a car salesman wanted for questioning in the mysterious death of Wheeling gambler Nick Miller, whose body was found stuffed in the trunk of his car Thursday.

Wheeling Police Lt. William Finnigan said gangland sources informed him the woman was a "blind" for the used car salesman, identified as Jack (Doggy) Russell, 55. The woman, according to the Allegheny County Detective Bureau, was known as Vickie Morris.

Miller, a Wheeling cafe owner, apparently spent most of Friday night of last week with the woman after being introduced to her by Russell and then decided to take a short vacation, Finnigan said. Underworld reports had Miller going across the Ohio River to Steubenville, Ohio, last Saturday to collect a gambling debt owed by a syndicate.

The Allegheny County detective bureau, in a teletype message, said Miller had "a large sum of cash" with him when last seen.

Miller's car had been parked on a residential street in nearby Wilkinsburg since last Sunday.

Allegheny County pathologist Dr. Theodore Helmbold said an autopsy failed to reveal the cause of Miller's death. Police, however, assumed homicide must have been involved. The body was clad only in shorts and socks and was stuffed head first in the trunk.

Trunk Victim Was Brother of Local Woman

Nick Miller, the Wheeling, W. Va. gambler whose mysterious death is baffling police, was the brother of a Monessen woman, Mrs. Mary Vosvick Ortolona.

His father Milan Vosvick Sr. and brother, Milan Jr., formerly lived in Monessen.

The father once worked at the Monessen plant of Pittsburgh Steel Co.

His brother, Milan, was arrested on Jan. 24, 1954, for selling liquor illegally at a "speakeasy" at 1134 Schoonmaker Ave., Monessen, local police records revealed today.

The dead man has several relatives living here.

Police said today they have "no record" on Miller. As far as could be learned, he never lived here although he visited here frequently.

His sister lived on Morgan Ave. near 14th St. until fire destroyed her home several months ago. Her present address is unknown.

Judge Weiss to Try First Case on Monday

Judge David H. Weiss of Monessen will preside over his first case in Westmoreland County common pleas court Monday, courthouse officials in Greensburg reported today.

Appointed to the bench by Gov. George Leader, Judge Weiss was sworn-in Aug. 16. He is a Democratic nominee for a full 10-year term.

Three minor cases are on the criminal court docket for Judge Weiss' court Monday, the district attorney's office said. Two involve alleged motor vehicle violations and the third is an assault and battery case involving two women.

Judge Weiss sat on the bench with Judge John M. O'Connell, also of common pleas court, during the trial of several cases this week.

"He was trying to get the feel of things," a court official told The Daily Independent today. "Being behind the bench is a lot different from presenting cases."

Although Judge Weiss has practiced law in Monessen for about 25 years and was an assistant district attorney for many years before his appointment as judge, he has had little courtroom experience. He was one of the senior assistant prosecutors, but almost never tried a case before a judge and jury.

Judge Weiss also represented four public bodies in Monessen and Rostraver Twp. as solicitor. But when cases arose which called for courtroom appearances, other counsel usually was engaged.

This practice is followed by many attorneys. Also some lawyers make a specialty of courtroom work and make their services available to those who prefer not to engage in the actual trial of cases, criminal or civil.

Moscow Blasts Treatment of Soviet Ships

LONDON (UP)—Radio Moscow charged today that two Soviet warships which passed through the English Channel this week were buzzed by Allied planes, shadowed by submarines and nearly rammed by an unlighted motor vessel.

The Soviet broadcast, quoting an article in the navy organ Red Fleet, said the treatment of the ships was an "international scandal."

The British navy and air force declined comment.

The 14,000-ton Russian cruiser Mikhail Kutuzov and an escorting destroyer, en route from Leningrad to the Mediterranean, passed through the channel Wednesday and Thursday.

No Fallout to Latest Test of Nuclear Device

ANGELS PEAK, Nev. (UP)—The latest detonation of a nuclear device was made so high above the ground—about 1,500 feet in the air—that it resulted in virtually no radioactive fallout, scientists reported today.

The Atomic Energy Commission said the shot, fired Friday from a helium-filled balloon, was virtually "clean" because it was detonated so high above ground it did not suck up dirt from beneath the balloon.

Observers said the stem of the mushroom cloud formed by the blast failed to touch the earth. The flash of the fireball, however, was visible as a brilliant orange glow in the sky to the observers on this peak 55 miles from ground zero.

The AEC announced its next test was scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 29, and would be a tower shot.

Three Boys Burn to Death Near Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Three boys burned to death in a flaming barn Friday while the grandmother of one saved cattle, not realizing the children were inside.

Burned beyond recognition in the fire at nearby Menoher Heights, Somerset County, were John D. Pebley Jr., 14, his brother, Donald, 10, and their cousin Peter Nitch Jr., 14. The Pebleys, who lived on a farm adjoining the Nitch property, were visiting their cousins.

The bodies of the boys, who had been playing inside a den made of hay bales, were not discovered until after the blaze had leveled the barn and adjoining milk shed. Firemen first realized the children might have been trapped when the seared wreckage of their bicycles was found in the debris.

Mrs. Mabel Geisel, a grandmother of the Nitch boy, said she was in the house when she heard two other Nitch children scream that the farn was on fire. She ran to the structure and managed to bring out two cows, not realizing Peter and his two cousins were inside.

Firemen said the boys might have set off the blaze while smoking in the hay hut which they had constructed on the lower level of the two story farm. Coroner Robert H. Halverson said access to the den was through a long tunnel fashioned from the bales.

Thirteen fire companies from the Cambria-Somerset area battled the blaze for more than two hours and prevented the flames from spreading to the house. Damage was estimated at more than $40,000.

Police said parents of the Nitch boy were in Johnstown delivering eggs when the fire was touched off. Mrs. Nitch was placed under a doctor's care.

Floods Hit Poland

WARSAW, Poland (UP)—Severe floods in the Goldap district of northeast Poland destroyed two bridges and a number of buildings today. Troops helped evacuate farm families threatened by the overflowing Wegorapa and Goldap rivers.

Man on Shotgun Spree

PHILADELPHIA (UP) —A 60-year-old man terrorized a South Philadelphia neighborhood Friday in a wild shooting spree, firing a shotgun at everybody in sight after barricading himself in his third floor apartment.

Police said the sniper, identified as John Smith, was subdued only after they rushed his apartment and beat him into submission.

Alfred DeSantis, 36, of Upper Darby, Pa., who operates a beer distributing firm in the same building, was shot in the left wrist and several women in the neighborhood were treated at a hospital for hysteria.

Police said they would recommend a psychiatric examination for Smith at a hearing today. They said the shooting apparently was an outgrowth of Smith's delusion that he owned the building (at 5th and Queen Sts) and that DeSantis owed him rent.

The beer distributor told police that Smith had been dunning him for the past six months for the "rent" and almost two weeks ago brought a shotgun and threatened him with it unless he paid.

DeSantis said that earlier Friday Smith came into his store, without the gun, asked him again for the money, then left.

Car Peppered

Later DeSantis was sitting in his parked auto, police said, when Smith began firing at him from his apartment. The beer distributor ran for the cover of a doorway as two detectives on routine patrol drove up.

Smith, who was successively firing from two windows, let go with a blast that peppered the detectives' car. Detective Thomas Cannon said he counted at least six shots fired from the third floor and that he himself returned 11 rounds.

As two neighbors rushed DeSantis to the hospital, Smith fired four more shots at them. A patrol car drew up and Smith fired at them. One of the patrolmen, Dominic Grota, ducked into a doorway leading to the stairway to Smith's apartment.

He ran up the stairs, and fired a shot at the sniper, who slammed the door and locked himself in the room.

Grota fired five shots into the door. As he was reloading Smith opened the door a crack and poked the shotgun through. Grota grabbed the gun, and pulled forward, jerking Smith onto the landing where the patrolman subdued him with the butt of his pistol.

Board Absolves Army Officer Of Four Deaths

FORT SILL, Okla. (UP) — An eight-man court-martial board absolved Lt. Col. Walter P. Berger Friday night of guilt in the death of four soldiers hit by mortar fire.

The board found Berger, formerly of Philadelphia, Pa., innocent on four charges of homicide and one count of dereliction of duty.

Berger burst into tears as he tried to talk to newsmen after the verdict was anounced.

He said he was grateful for the way the court martial turned out, but wished the incident never had occurred.

Berger blamed his superior officer in final testimony Friday. He said his commanding officer — Lt. Col. Walter D. Short — ordered a volley of mortar fire resumed after several rounds fell near a group of advancing infantrymen. The four soldiers were killed in the ensuing volley.

Short, his commanding officer, is the son of the late Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, who commanded the Hawaiian Department of the Army during the Pearl Harbor attack. He and Adm. Husband E. Kimmel were found derelict in their duty by a board of inquiry in 1942, but they were later cleared.

IT WAS A TIGHT SQUEEZE—At the end of a harrowing night wedged in a 6½-inch space between two buildings less than a block from her home in Providence, R. I., 3-year-old Eileen Fahey is pulled through an opening cut in one of the walls. She apparently followed a cat into the space, and first was spotted by a neighbor from the second floor of a nearby dwelling. Taken to Rhode Island hospital, she was reported suffering from exposure "but doing fine."

Child Killed in Fayette Accident

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP) — Charles R. Clements, 10, Uniontown RD1, was killed Friday when his bicycle collided with an automobile near his home.

Joseph Takac, 37, Uniontown, driver of the car, told police he was unable to stop when Charles darted out from a driveway.

Channel Challenging

LONDON (UP) — Greta Anderson, of Long Beach, Calif., who won this week's international cross-channel swim from France to England, said today she plans to swim from England to France next month. The 30-year-old Danish wife of a Long Beach physical culturist said she hopes to be the first woman to swim the English Channel both ways in one summer.

The annual picnic for employes of the Melenyzer Furniture Store, Charleroi, was held last evening at Charmel Farms. C. L. Melenyzer was host.

Thirty-six employes were served steak, corn and other refreshments outdoors.

Leader Asks Survey For Erie Highway

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has asked the Highways Department to complete a location and cost estimate study for construction of a limited access highway from the West Virginia line to the port of Erie.

The proposed superhighway would generally parallel U. S. Route 19 and would be incorporated with planned limited access portions of U. S. 19. The expressway would be constructed under the interstate system, with the state providing 10 per cent of its cost and the federal government the balance, the governor indicated.

Leader announced the study request late Friday, following a meeting with several political and civic leaders from southwestern Pennsylvania and top highways department officials.

Leader said the need for the proposed highway was apparent.

"It will give western Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia badly needed access to a lake port which can ship goods to, and receive goods from, United States and Canadian lake ports via the St. Lawrence Waterway," he said.

The governor said the survey would begin immediately and indicated every effort would be made to have the route accepted as part of the interstate system.

The western Pensylvania delegation asked for continued improvement of Route 88 from Pittsburgh to the West Virginia line and discussed improvement and relocation of part of Route 88 between Washington and Waynesburg and improvement of local roads in Washington and Greene Counties.

as an exchange student, she said she screamed with excitement and ran about her home shouting,

'Che gioia, che bellessa." (what joy, what beauty).

Her mother wasn't as happy, however, Elizabeth said, and it took some pleading by Elizabeth, her father, sister and two brothers to convince the mother that a year in America would have its advantages.

Mrs. Farenti consented, gave her blessing and said to Elizabeth before she departed:

'She's Lonely'

"You must remember to be a good girl. And study hard because you will be examined when you return."

But until that time, she will be a welcome member of the Komatz family, taking part in practically every phase of the new home life. Florine Komatz, a high school senior, will be Elizabeth's contant companion.

"She's lovely," Florine said. "She has a very good sense of humor. I'm looking forward to a year of enjoyment."

Mrs. Komatz said her family already has the feeling that "Elizabeth is one of us. She is making herself at home, and that is the way we want it. She is well-mannered and extremely nice all-around. We're all going to have a very pleasant year."

One of the first things that caught Elizabeth's eye at the Komatz home was the toaster. Florine said Elizabeth jumped a few feet when the pop-up toaster began popping up. The visitor said she never saw one in action before. Italians, she stated, don't eat toast. She's having a great time with the toaster now.

Cosmetics Ban

She said the only difference between clothes worn by American girls and Italian girls is that dresses in her country are made by hand while here they are machine-made. She added that "otherwise they are about the same."

Italian girls usually aren't permitted to use cosmetics until they are about 25 or 26 years old, she stated. With a twinkle in her eye, she confessed that "sometimes we sneak on a little lipstick when we go to a dance in the evening."

She said she was surprised that Mrs. Komatz' spaghetti was so much "like at home."

"I didn't think Americans knew how to prepare spaghetti but Mrs. Komatz really does."

Elizabeth won't have much free time to herself, according to present plans. At school she will study chemistry, physics, problems of democracy, English and typing. In the evenings, when social affairs don't interfere, she will study Greek, Latin and philosophy.

What's 'Hot Dog'?

Florine said Elizabeth's social life will include football and basketball games, dances, parties — "and maybe a few trips to the beauty shop."

Elizabeth, who speaks and understands some English, caused quite a laugh during her interview at The Daily Independent office when a reporter asked,

"Would you like to eat a hot dog?" ... ...

Her dark eyes popped wide open and she exclaimed,

"Mia! Che e queste? Chi voglia dire!" (My! What is that: What does it mean?)

She was greatly relieved when the reporter said he wasn't referring to a dish of canine.

Her trip to America wasn't without incident. The ship on which she traveled had an outbreak of Asiatic flu, but she was fortunate in not being stricken to any great extent.

When Elizabeth says "arrivederci" after completing her year of school, she intends to enter the University of Rome to study nuclear physics.

But until then, the charming girl will be busy seeing what makes Americans tick.

Hollywood Glitter Is Tarnished by Trial

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Confidential magazine's gold—in the form of checks—tarnished the glitter of Hollywood today by linking the names of her elite with kiss-and-tell informers who were paid up to $1000 for each tattle-tale about the stars.

Actress Joan Crawford was named in such testimony Friday in the criminal libel trial of the magazine as having had an affair with a bartender who now is maitre D' at an exclusive Hollywood restaurant—and who got a $750 check for telling Confidential about the adventure. Named was Robert Tuton.

A star-studded parade of other luminous names in filmland—and a blue - book socialite — then were marched into the court record in further testimony from Fred Meade, operator of a gossip-collection agency in Hollywood. He was under cross-examination by Dep. Dist. Atty. William Ritzi. He identified payees of a stack of photostats of checks from his agency, Hollywood Research, Inc., and told what the payments were for.

They covered pay for stories on John Jacob Astor, Edward G. Robinson, singer Dean Martin, Walter Pidgeon, Ava Gardner and Lana Turner, Fredric March, Dane Clark, Denise Darcel and others.

Meade told on the stand of paying $1000 to another former bartender, Donald L. Bledsoe, for "confirming some material for us . . . an incident in Palm Springs involving Ava Gardner and Lana Turner."

All the revelations were over strenuous objections by defense attorney Arthur Crowley.

The trial was in weekend recess but the same-song-second verse was expected when court resumes Monday with Meade on the stand.

State Selects Two to Enter Plowing Contest

HERSHEY, Pa., (UP) — Two Central Pennsylvania farmers, judged the state's champion plowmen, will represent the Commonwealth at the National Plowing Contest at Peebles, Ohio, Sept. 18-19.

George E. Horner, 30, of Centre Hall RD-1, won the state title for level land plowman at the annual statewide competition at Hershey Thursday. Harold E. Forrester, 27, Chambersburg RD-1, runner up in the 1956 national contest, was named state contour plowing champion.

Myron Young, Chambersburg RD-3, second place contour winner, will also be entered in the national match.

Both winners received citations from Leland H. Bull, state deputy secretary of agriculture.

Chiang Old-timers Are 'Retired' by Americans

By ROBERT BROWN

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—Nearly 80,000 old and ineffective troops have been weeded out of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces during the past two years in a touch - and - go program that could have exploded into trouble on Formosa.

It took six million dollars in U.S. aid funds to replace them with alert, young troops. But today the average age of Chiang's 600,000-man force is down to about 25.

Two years ago top American officers, and some Nationalist officials, became seriously worried about the aging soldiers who had retreated with Chiang from the China mainland in 1949.

They were a detriment to the combat effectiveness of a military force that America is spending millions to equip and maintain.

But the 69-year-old generalissimo himself and many of his top officers were reluctant to turn out his old and loyal troops. Many had brilliant combat records. Most of them knew nothing but military life.

Officials Worried

It was clear that the shaky, American-supported island economy of Formosa could not absorb that many retired troops without trouble, even on a gradual basis. And the Americans wanted to retire them as quickly as possible.

The primary concern was that if 80,000 retired veterans became discontented or overanxious to return to the China mainland they could be the fuse igniting the powder keg on Formosa.

Some officials also were worried that they would become a disrupting political force internally.

Feeling it was absolutely essential to the combat effectiveness of the Nationalist forces, U.S. officials allocated 42-millionn dollars for a four-year program that would phase them intno the civilian economy without disrupting it.

One of the principal aims was to make them self-supporting.

It was a project never tried before in the history of American aid programs—which have tackled almost everything else.

Chinese and American officials agree today — at the half way mark — that it has been successful.

A 73-year-old sergeant is the oldest of the retiring troops, many of whom need intensive medical attention. About 15,000 are tubercular, 800 leprous and several hundred more are amputees.

Replacement Centers

The U.S. aid funds went to set up replacement centers, and hospital facilities, start construction projects on which the men could be put to work.

More than 5,000 former soldiers are cutting out 192 miles of road on a cross-island highway project from the Pacific to the Formosa Straits. It will span 6,000 to 10,000-foot high passes in what were once almost inaccessible mountains.

The highway project will open thousands of miles of virgin forest land where other retired servicemen will be able to set up timber projects or farms.

A vocational assistance program for the retired servicemen has been effectively bossed by Chiang's eldest son. Politically powerful Lt. Gen. Chiang Ching-Kuo.

We Hope It Works

THE STATE Department has backed down to some extent on its policy forbidding American citizens to travel in Communist China. Under severe pressure from news gathering agencies, the policy has been modified to permit 24 correspondents to go to Red China for an experimental period of seven months.

There is little doubt that the State Department has modified its policy with considerable reluctance and only because some metropolitan newspapers, press associations and magazines were raising a ruckus about the matter, making it appear that the government was curtailing the information available to the American people.

We did not join in this hue and cry. And we remain skeptical as to whether the correspondents will be able to tell us very much about Red China that we do not know or that we need to know to form good judgments about that country. To be quite frank about it, we think some of the clamor came from quarters in the news business which are as much interested in pulling off journalistic stunts as they are in finding out about what goes on in China.

Nevertheless, we hope the experiment works. The United Press, to whose service The Daily Independent subscribes, will have one of the 24 reporters in Peiping, and undoubtedly we will be printing most of his dispatches. If they are interesting and imformative, we shall be pleased.

We cling to the feeling, however, that the State Department was right the first time. We are at war with Red China; we do not recognize the Communist government; many Americans, including some prisoners of war, are rotting in Communist jails; and it goes against the grain to give even this slight appearance of normalcy to the relations between the United States and Red China.

GM and Reuther

GENERAL Motors has made the obvious response to Walter Reuther's proposal that the company reduce the price of its cars by $100 and that his Auto Workers union will then take this into consideration in formulating its wage demands next year.

The GM reply "suggests" to Mr. Reuther that he show good faith in his concern about inflation by extending the present wage contract for two more years. This says GM, would be a "real contribution to the economic stability in our country."

It was not hard to identify Mr. Reuther's proposal as a publicity gimmick. He has a million of 'em, and he can get a headline almost any day he wants it.

GM's reply is a gimmick, too. It knows perfectly well that Walter Reuther has to produce a wage increase every time he negotiates or he's a dead duck in the labor union business. And if some automobile companies can't stand the gaff and go to the wall in the process — well, that's just tough.

We think the public is slowly getting wise to the gimmicks of both big labor and big business. Between them they are putting a frightful squeeze on the average American family. And when one points a finger at the other and says, "You're to blame for inflation," the truth is apt to be that they're both right.

More than once in the nation's history there has been a popular reaction to the concentration of economic power. Another such reaction may well be in the making today.

The Needle Again

WE'RE AS MUCH in favor of the advancement of medical science as the next one. And we want that understood before we make the following comment.

We just wish that medical science would find some way to protect us from the scourges of disease without making pincushions of us.

Many of us during the war were inoculated against everything from lockjaw to bubonic plague. In fact, the medics seemed to have a serum for everything but boredom and cowboy movies.

They've got something now for polio, and it seems to be working real well. But it takes a needle, and before many of us have gotten around to getting the recommended three shots, they've come out with "Asiatic flu". This is going to hit, they say, about the time the poor hay fever sufferers who haven't taken the shots for that, are starting to enjoy the colder weather. That means the needle again.

We suppose all this is necessary and desirable. But it's a good thing our Maker was wise enough to provide us with puncture-proof, self-sealing hides.

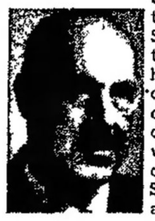
Merry-Go-Round—

Background Of Battle On 'Rights'

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Several backstage factors, hassles, and wirepullers caused all the backing and filling over the civil rights bill.

One was the fact that Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas got so much credit for putting across the Senate bill that the Republicans had to figure out how they could get more credit. One way was to stall and claim that the Senate bill was a bad bill.



Mr. Pearson

Another factor was Vice President Nixon who consistently and energetically pulled wires for delay. He had fought hard to defeat the jury trial amendment, lost that fight, and felt that if the civil rights bill went over till the next session of Congress, the Senate would be in Republican hands and he could then win. It was Nixon's California friends in the House Republican conference who fought hardest for a tougher civil rights bill.

Another hassle was between Republican factions. In some respects they were almost as split as the Democrats.

Finally, there was the unusual spectre of an Alphonse-Gaston act between two old friends who are not usually prima donnas, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Democrat, of Texas and ex-Speaker Joe Martin, Republican, of Massachusetts.

For a while neither would speak to the other about breaking the deadlock in the House Rules Committee. Joe even told the four Republican members of that committee that he didn't want them to do anything about getting a vote on civil rights until Speaker Sam approached him.

Joe's Hurt Feelings

Real fact was that good old Joe Martin, supposed to be as tough a politician as ever served in Washington, had hurt feelings. He would never admit this, but friends say it was a fact. Perhaps he was justified.

For when the battling over civil rights reached its toughest point in the House of Representatives, Joe Martin sat down at breakfast with Clarence Mitchell, Washington representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Name by name they went over the list of way-ward Republicans.

These were the 60 to 70 Republicans who planned to line up with the South on the jury trial amendment. Joe knew these men intimately, told Mitchell how to influence their vote. He himself also went to bat to win their vote. And it was because of his own energetic work that the jury trial amendment was so overwhelmingly defeated in the House.

But today, having used his personal efforts to defeat the jury trial amendment, Joe is in the position of having to swallow it. That's why he's irked and waited for his old friend Sam Rayburn to approach him first.

Stormy GOP Caucus

Martin had a rough time keeping some of his GOP colleagues with him in the closed door GOP strategy meeting on civil rights the other day. A few even walked out.

"We are engaged in a war of nerves," Joe made an impassioned plea. "I'm willing to stay here until Thanksgiving, if necessary, to obtain a stronger civil rights bill."

"I don't want to be kept here anymore than you do," the ex-Speaker continued. "I want to eat my Thanksgiving dinner back home in Massachusetts. But as long as the Democrats remain tough and uncompromising in this fight, we Republicans will be just as tough."

Rep. Charles Gubser of California, who has few if any Negroes in his district and no political reason to be strong for civil rights other than his close friendship with Nixon, then offered a resolution putting the Republicans on record as fully supporting Martin in efforts to obtain a "stronger, more effective and better civil rights measure."

In the voice vote that followed, only about half of those present voted "aye." There was a loud chorus of "no's" which didn't please either Martin or the Nixonites.

Finally another motion was offered, promising support for Martin in his efforts to obtain a "stronger and more effective" bill.

"I can't go along with that," shouted De Witt Hyde of Maryland. "I object to the word 'stronger.'"

The motion was adopted, however, with Hyde and another Marylander, General James Devereux, Marine hero of Wake Island, voting "no."

Today and Tomorrow—

U. S. Calm About Syria

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Washington has been reacting calmly to the events in Syria, almost certainly because they have long been foreseeable, and are not a surprise. The events stem from the basic situation among the Arab nations in the Middle East; first, that the great powers are rivals competing for their favor, and second, that there is rivalry among the Arab ruling classes, who are competing for the support, of the great powers.

Mr. Lippmann

For these reasons, there has never been any chance that all the Arab countries would line up with us under some sort of pan-Arab Eisenhower Doctrine. As we have been making our deals with one group of Arab countries, another group — as it happens Syria, Egypt, Yemen — have been making tentative deals with the Soviet Union.

We are involved in a complicated and tricky game of power politics, and we must expect to have losses as well as gains. We have had gains in Saudi-Arabia, Jordan, and Lebanon. Now we have had a loss in Syria. The one thing that we can be fairly sure of is that the whole region is in flux, and that neither the gains, as in Jordan, nor the losses, as in Syria, can be counted on as permanent.

Big Difference

For while it may turn out to be the fact that the new military dictatorship in Syria is firmly under Soviet control, there is, I venture to think, bound to be a radical difference between a contiguous and a non-contiguous satellite — between one that can be reached over land by the Red Army and one that can be reached only by sea and air. It was possible for the Red Army to march into Hungary, to occupy it and to crush the rebellion. That would not be nearly so easy to do — what with the Baghdad allies being interposed — if there were a rebellion in Syria. For the Soviet Union it can be said that Egypt as well as Syria are rather in the nature of outposts than true satellites.

It is generally agreed, as the President said at his press conference yesterday, that the coup in Syria does not call for any reaction under the Eisenhower Doctrine. The Syrian coup is a successful intrigue in which the legal legal government of Syria has acquiesced, at which it has probably connived. The basic principle of the Eisenhower Doctrine is that we will intervene only at the request of a legitimate government, and in the case of Syria the legitimate government is stridently hostile to the Eisenhower Doctrine and to the United States.

The right course is the one that the administration appears to be taking — to leave the initiative to Syria's neighbors, allowing them to decide on the only action which is possible — whether the new Soviet government should be put in quarantine. That is the limit of the action.

There can be no action under the Eisenhower Doctrine unless Syria first openly makes war on one or more of her neighbors, on Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, or Israel. Insofar as Syria is under Soviet influence, it will probably not be encouraged, in fact it will probably not be permitted, to do anything which could precipitate a general war.

In retrospect, it looks more and more as if Sen. Fulbright is right, and that our crucial mistake in the Middle East has been the abrupt rejection of the Aswan Dam. Not only did this touch off the calamitous series of events which began with Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal Co., but it also deprived the Western world of the chance to cooperate with Egypt in a great project which is of vital interest to the Egyptian people.

The fact of our withdrawal, combined with the rude manner in which we withdrew, has excluded us from the chance to exercise a friendly influence. It has left the field open to the Soviet Union, and made it certain that Nasser's demagogy would be turned against us all over the Arab world.

Yet it is probably true that Nasser does not want, and will try his best to avoid, a complete entanglement with the Soviet orbit. The central idea of his foreign policy seems to be that he can profit most by keeping the Soviet Union and the West bidding against each other. To do that he must be independent enough to keep both sides guessing, which, we may suppose, is what he means when he talks about a positive neutrality.

Sacrifices Needed to Make City Progress

By HARRY R. PORE, Jr.

When that articulate little Scotsman, Tom Preston, was talking to the local Rotary Club this week about the Planning Commission's work in developing a master plan for Monessen, I was seated directly to port of the speaker's table. So I could get only in profile those quick changes of expression which are part of Tom's effective platform technique.

But nobody around here needs to look Tom Preston in the eye to be convinced of his dedication to what is good for Monessen. And he would insist that I add right away that that applies no less to the other members of the Planning Commission.

The public has not heard very much as yet about the work of the Commission although it has been in progress for about a year and a half. To date only the basic information compiled in an inventory has been released. The master plan itself and the important recommendations for new legislation to implement it will be coming along during the next few months.

But I have the feeling already that the people of Monessen, now and for a couple of generations into the future, will owe a lot to these men. I think it is accurate to say that, not for about 30 years, has so much concentrated thought been applied to this city's needs and how they might be satisfied.

First Plan in 1920s

As I listened to Tom explaining the background against which the Planning Commission and its consultants are working, my mind kept going back to the late 1920s when Monessen's first long-range plan was developed a few years after the town became a third class city.

My father was chairman of that original Planning Commission, and I have some vivid boyhood recollections of the long hours of study and debate about Monessen's future that they put in. Many evenings the maps and charts and figures would be spread over our dining room table while the men around it talked earnestly about the kind of town this could be.

Those men are all gone now, and the plan they produced has long since been out of date in most respects. But the city administration of that time was in sympathy with it. So Monessen got the beginnings of a park system; it got a couple of major thoroughfares; some badly needed street improvements and sewer extensions which in turn led to a new residential development; and it got one of the first zoning ordinances in Western Pennsylvania. Monessen, in short, is a very much better community today than it would have been had not some citizens been willing to give freely of their time and abilities to make it better.

Long Sessions

Some of this flashed through my mind as Tom Preston was talking the other day. And I know that he and his colleagues on the Commission are having many long and sometimes tedious sessions like those that took place 30 years ago. And I am certain that, whatever develops from their efforts, Monessen will be a better place for all of us because of what they are doing.

In talking about the Planning Commission, I have no intention of minimizing the contributions of other citizen groups, offcial and unofficial, who are toiling in this same vineyard. They, too, deserve our gratitude. And so do the elected public officials without whose support the best city planning cannot be effective.

Cities lift themselves out of ruts and move to higher ground, however, only when some of their citizens give of themselves without stint and expect no return except a happier, pleasanter community. And let's face it honestly: no city ever has enough such people.

In The Open—

About Rats, Bats, Ants And Related Matters

By JOHN H. DAY

I walked slowly down the woodland roadway, watching a red-tailed hawk which circled in wide arcs above the trees. The only glimpses I had of this hunter were when he soared across the narrow canyon which the road had carved through the timber. From time to time he uttered the peculiar wheezy scream he uses when on the prowl.

I had not gone a hundred yards when I stumbled onto the quarry which had drawn the red-tail to this spot. Here along this lonely back country road was a filthy dump, smelling to high heaven. The roadway skirts a deep ravine at this point. Callous folk of the neighborhood, too lazy to make proper disposal of their household rubbish, have dumped a mountain of tin cans and other debris into this otherwise beautiful gorge.

Apparently I had come down the road so quietly that the huge congregation of rats living in this noisome mess were completely unaware of my presence at the roadside. There were so many of the big brown fellows looting about in that pile of rusty cans that the whole dump appeared to be a living crawling thing. The hawk lost interest when he saw me standing there in the trail, and flew off elsewhere, screaming his annoyance.

Swarms of Rats

I watched those rats for perhaps 20 minutes, trying to arrive at some idea as to how many were actually visible at one time. I think a conservative figure would be 30, but there must surely be a colony of several hundred of these dangerous vermin at home there on that foul bank. The interlude ended suddenly when another car came down through the trees, driving the rats to cover.

We had a few moments of speedy action one recent evening with "vermin" of another sort. A crew of painters had just finished coating the exterior of the house and the screens were not yet back in place. Sometime during the evening a little brown bat zoomed in through the back door and made himself at home, apparently on the back of one of the living room chairs. I didn't know we had a visitor until there came a sudden yelping from the distaff side when the bat decided to tour the premises.

Now bats are perfectly harmless little fellows and if left to their own devices will probably soon fly out the same way they came in. But I was under immediate command to get that bat out of the house right then and there. I folded up a newspaper into a bludgeon and drove the aviator into one of the bedrooms. From then on for a time it was touch and go as that bat made a complete fool of me. I made a wild swipe and scored a clean miss every time he circled by.

After a few moments of this futile exertion I was wringing wet and the bat seemed as fresh as ever. Suddenly I thought of the broom and armed myself with that weapon. On the second wallop the broom crashed into the floor and the handle snapped off at the broom head. This was going too far. I maneuvered the broom head something like a tennis racket and finally succeeded in dropping the visitor to the floor. He was only slightly stunned and I chucked him outside, little the worse for wear.

Summer Declines

The countryside has taken on that late summer down-at-heel look. The first blush of summer bloom is past and now comes seed time and harvest. Some of the fall bloomers are already moving into the picture. I see the tall Joe-Pye weed, and white vervain and the blue lettuce and other tall fellows who have to struggle through and above the summer herbage to find a place in the sun.

On the fences behind the house great clusters of brilliant red berries have been hung out by the purple nightshade. The birds don't seem to bother these delicious-looking fruits until mid-winter, when other fare is not to be had. The graceful cleamatis known as Virgin's Bower is also blooming along this fence line. Garden phlox has escaped from earlier plantings and is at home in great masses along the creek bottoms. Occasionally a pure white bloom punctuates the massed purplish-pink show.

I am somewhat perturbed about a wholesale migration now going on across our side lawn. A colony of the large red ants has packed up and is moving out on us, lock, stock, and barrel. Part of the caravan route is across a cement walk, and we can watch the carriers, toting eggs and other household paraphernalia one way, while empty-handed colleagues hasten back over the rail. Numerous outriders are apparently the military, screening the whole movement. I wonder who raised the rent on those ants?

Kelemen-Hall Nuptials Are Solemnized at St. Leonard

Patricia Marion Kelemen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kelemen, of 534 Rostraver St., became the bride of Eugene Jerome Hall on Thursday, Aug. 22. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hall of 410 Donner Ave.

They exchanged their double ring vows in St. Leonard Roman Catholic Church at 9 o'clock in the morning. The Rev. John L. Conway officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a ballerina length gown of white lace. It was styled along princess lines with a matching jacket, which was made with a Queen Ann collar and elbow length sleeves. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was held to a tiara of sequins and she carried a white Prayer Book topped with an orchid corsage

Maid of Honor

Maid of honor was Geraldine Luksich, who wore a blue lace ballerina length gown with a boat neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore a blue band with a shoulder length veil and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses.

William Radosh served as best man.

Both attendants are from Monessen.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of blue silk with a pink rose corsage. Mrs Hall selected a navy blue ensemble with a pink rose corsage.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride immediately following the ceremony. Later in the day there was a reception held at the home. A four tiered wedding cake centered the bridal table.

Trip to Canada

Mr. and Mrs Hall went to Niagara Falls and Canada for their wedding trip The bride's traveling ensemble was a beige dress with matching accessories. Upon their return they will reside at 62 Donner Ave., in a newly -furnished apartment.

The bride and bridegroom were both graduated from Monessen High School, she in 1955 and he in 1953. He is employed at the Page Division of the American Chain and Cable Co. and his bride was formerly employed in a local grocery store.

'Back to School' Frolic Attracts Many Teenagers

The "Back to School" frolic, first of its kind to be held at a district country club, attracted 100 teenage dancers to the Monongahela Valley Country Club last night.

Teenage sons and daughters of club members and member sponsored guests comprised the guest list from all valley towns.

Late summer flowers decorated the club house, and refreshment tables were laid for the serving of soft drinks and other light refreshments on the sunporch and in the dining room.

From 8:30 until 11 o'clock the young people danced to the music of Stuart Arnold's orchestra.

Give Awards

Arnold McClain, who served as chairman of the event, gave several prize awards for the novelty dances. They were won by Dick Johnston and Laura Chapman, Vic Bindi and Tanya Karpiak and Sandy Palmer and Ron Chislaghi.

Gerry Schutzler won the special award.

Assisting Mr. McClain on the committee were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. James Salay Jr. of Belle Vernon, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Vezzani of Charleroi, Dr. and Mrs. Martin E. Hannigen of Country Club Rd., Mr. and Mrs. C. O. DeVore, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Miale, Dr. and Mrs. H. Gadd and Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Hughes all of Monongahela.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Robinson of Monongahela representing the Women's Golf Association, and Mr. and Mrs. James D. Hamilton of Monongahela representing the Men's Activities Committee were present as chaperones. The event was sponsored by both groups.

LOCALS

Ellen Vance has returned to her home on Donner Ave. after spending the past two weeks recuperating at the home of a niece in Charleroi. She recently underwent surgery in the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital.

Mrs. Hugh McKinley of Monongahela, former resident of Monessen, has been admitted to Monongahela Memorial Hospital for surgery.

Valgene Veschio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Veschio, of Reed Ave., is a patient in the Presbyterian Hospital, Pittsburgh. His room number is 952.

Mrs. Innocenza Persico of Summit Ave. is still confined as a patient in Allegheny General Hospital, Pittsburgh, where it is expected that she will remain for the next few weeks.

Mrs. Harry Lape and daughter, Kay, of Oakland Ave., Charleroi, are vacationing at Atlantic City and New York.

Vincent Danko is undergoing observation at the Monongahela Memorial Hospital.

Sally Ann Scheeren Weds Leigh Marsh

Sally Ann Scheeren and Leigh Andrew Marsh exchanged nuptial vows on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 17, in the Ford Methodist Church of Ford City. The Rev. C. Arthur Sadofsky, church pastor, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Tillman Scheeren of Ford City and the late Mr. Scheeren. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Marsh of Harris St., West Newton.

The single ring vows were exchanged at 2:30 o'clock before the altar banked with scheffieras and vases of white daisies. White satin bows indicated the family pews.

Mrs. Lyman W. Theemler of West Newton was the organist. She played a program of nuptial music before the ceremony and accompanied the soloist, Math Kamer of Ford City. He sang 'I Love You Truly", "Because", 'O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Given by Brother

James Scheeren of Indiana, brother of the bride, gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white embroidered organdy over taffeta. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice, scoop neckline and short sleeves. The bouffant skirt skirt extended into a chapel sweep. An orange blossom crown held her veil of sheer illusion, and she carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Mrs. Donald Cochenour of West Newton served as the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Bradshaw of Silver Spring, Md., sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Dayne Kahle of Reynoldsville. They wore ballerina length gowns of white embroidered organdy over green taffeta. They were fashioned with a fitted bodice, short sleeves and a square neckline. The deep hem of the full skirt was accented with applique. They wore picture hats of white horsehair braid trimmed with tiny green flowers.

The matron of honor carried a crescent bouquet of yellow and white daisies with twining ivy. The bridesmaids bouquets were fashioned of yellow daisies and ivy.

Mr. Marsh asked his brother-in-law, John Bradshaw of Silver Spring, Md., to be his best man. Ushers were James Carney of Dravosburg, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Robert Scheeren of Mt. Lebanon, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride selected a yellow sheath dress of linette She wore white accessories and a corsage of white daisies. The mother of the bridegroom chose a blue gray sheath dress of embroidered linen with white accessories and a daisy corsage.

A reception for 250 relatives and friends was held in the church social rooms after the ceremony White and yellow daisies decorated the table where the buffet refreshments were served. White daisies and sprengeri were placed around the four tiered wedding cake, which was baked by the bride's cousin, Mrs. Clifford Hutchison of New Kensington.

Later in the evening Mr. Marsh and his bride left for a trip to the Pocono Mountains. After Sept. 1 they will be at home in Haverford.

The bride is a graduate of Ford City High School and Indiana State Teachers College. She has been a teacher in the Clairion Joint Schools for the past three years. This fall she will begin teaching in the Haverford Township School District.

Mr. Marsh was graduated from West Newton High School and Pennsylvania State University. He is presently a junior in the School of Veterinary Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Pre-nuptial events including a miscellaneous shower, a linen shower and the rehearsal dinner were held for the bride and bridegroom.

Engagement of District Man Is Announced

Announcement is being made of the engagement of Diane Nason and William G. Keller. The betrothal was made known by the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Vieweg of Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Keller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Handel of West Newton.

An October date will be selected for the solemnization of the nuptials.

Prescription Pharmacists

HEART DISEASE PROBABLY HAS NOT INCREASED...
The increasing number of reports of heart disorders as a cause of death has been brought about by the success of medicine. Many persons who formerly might have died of other diseases now live long and useful lives—eventually to succumb to a failing heart which has performed its lifetime of duty.
Therefore—as we grow older, the care of the heart must be considered in our every activity. Have regular check-ups by your Doctor, and follow his guidance carefully. He probably can help to keep your heart functioning for many extra years of buoyant and happy life. Whenever medication is required, we will be happy to have you bring your prescriptions to this Pharmacy.

ON THE BALL

Midget Coaches Have Help Galore

Local Midget Football League teams certainly do not lack for coaching talent. For instance, Carmen DeMarco of the Jefferson team has Jim DiFlorio, the ex-Monessen and Fairmont State College gridder, Bruce Pezzelle, mostly known of late for his baseball exploits with the Ozarks, Adam Masci, another former Greyhound star, and Teddy Alatsis, still another ex-'Hound assisting him . . . Melvin Mills, ex-MHS ace, now a baseballer with Donora CIO, is assisting Dale Simpson with the Lincoln team . . . Joe Gladys, assistant grid mentor of the Greyhounds, helps head coach Armand Niccolai from 9 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. each day then goes to Ninth Street Park to play softball (centerfield) for the PNAs in the playoffs.

* * *

That contest in Donora to pick the all-time Donora High grid team from 1931-56 inclusive has ended and here's the first team choices: ends — Jim Toteda (1932-34) and Tony Sala (1931); tackles — Bob Gaydos (1952-53) and Alex Chesney (1931); guards—Acai & Stack (1931-32); center—Jack Jaso (1944); quarterback — Arnold Galiffa (1943-45); halfbacks — Roscoe Ross (1943-45), George Kovalcik (1931-33) and fullback — Dan Towler (1944-45) . . . It figured that at least three of the great 1944 backfield would be named . . . Assistant Coach George Kovalcik was the other back selected by fan-vote. He played in the 1931-33 era . . . A district soccer figure, Joseph Luxbacker, Sr., a former president of the Washington County League, was laid to rest this week.

Loss of Key Men Hurt Fayette City

Fayette City's collapse in the Mon Valley League playoffs came as a surprise to most fans but others sa ythey saw it coming when the Legionnaires began fading in the stretch drive. Main reason for the slump is blamed on the absence of sparkplug infielder Henry Studnicki, who left for service with Uncle Sam, and an injury to veteran Tinse Manown. It was a shame as the Fayette Citians had it sewed up . . . Only one home run was struck by the Monessen High School baseball team last season, the lone round-tripper coming off the bat of Jimmy Sepitsky. He has been coaching on the bases for the PNA-Ravens City Softball League series . . . Jack Shepler, the Ozarks' only southpaw, is now also delving into softball as a member of the Myfords entry in the City League.

* * *

Speaking of softball, John (Muggsy) Magatz, one of the sport's biggest boosters here, will miss his first playoffs this season as he is a patient at C-M Hospital. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery . . . Former Donora High gridders are really latching on to teaching and coaching jobs in the district. Latest to join the fold is ex-Donora High and Pitt ace Rudy Andabaker. He was hired provisionly to fill a vacancy on the Donora High physical education staff. He replaces Paul Ross, who took a post with California Teachers College . . . Wilmerding has added an assistant coach in Marius Santicola as the biggest hiring year in history (we think) continues.

Donora PONY Nine Strong WS Entry

Donora's PONY League team which goes into the World Series Monday in an 8:30 p. m. game carrying the valley's colors into the Washington, Pa., clash, is considered one of the finest PONY teams to come out of the valley with the likes of Chuck Guifridda, Elmer Palm, Paul Toninecz, Ed Niziolek, etc. Many district fans in addition to the bus-load of local PONY League teams are planning on attending to root for the Donorans . . . Pitt plays Oklahoma, the Pirates meet the New York Giants and the Steelers battle Green Bay on Sept. 21 and all three games are on KDKA's broadcast schedule. The problem was solved by getting the Bucs to move their day game to a night tilt, putting the Steelers tilt on AM and the Pirate game over FM since both of those are night contests. Slick, eh, wot?

Coast-to-Coast TV Big Aid to Hockey Interest

By MUZZ PATRICK
Gen. Mgr., N.Y. Rangers

NEW YORK (UP) — Just the other day a gentleman from Jacksonville, Fla., stopped by to visit me at the office in Madison Square Garden. He was on a rather unusual mission.

"I'd like to know," he said, "whether you would be receptive to taking your club down to our town to play an exhibition game before the National Hockey League season opens."

Well, now requests like that from warm, far-away areas don't happen every day. We're a cold, or should I say, cool - weather sport. So I asked him what he had in mind and how he happened to ask me.

Suggests Gator Bowl

"It's like this," he said. "We've seen hockey as it is played in the big league last year through CBS television. Our folks down our way think it's great. Like a lot of communities, we're interested in promoting local charities, and we think we could put the game on a portable rink outdoors—in our large 'Gator Bowl —and jam as many as 34,000 people into it."

So I said: "Sure, I'm interested. What's more, I'm sure the rest of our league would be. I think I could call my brother Lynn, who manages the Boston Bruins, and he would be glad to fly down there with us and put on this game.

"But there's one hitch," I went on. "I don't know how much it would cost to transport a regulation rink, of about 20 feet by 85 feet, to Jacksonville and to set it up in this great stadium of yours. The cost might be prohibitive."

So we queried one of the companies in the business of setting up ice skating rinks around the country, and the next day we got the bad news. As a rough estimate, the cost would be in the neighborhood of $25,000, which as a one-shot thing is a fairly exclusive neighborhood.

The official flower in Alaska is the forget-me-not while the official bird is the ptarmigan.

'Hounds In Initial 'Roughing'

Monessen High's gridders will go at it in their initial scrimmage session today possibly aganst "foreign opposition, according to Coach Armand Niccolai.

Yesterday afternoon the 'Hound mentor took pity on the local squad, permitted them to doff the moleskins, don shorts and work on plays that will be used in the scrimmage sessions.

The temperature climbed yesterday afternoon, having remained at a fairly comfortable level during the first few days of drills. In fact a couple of those days it was almost perfect football weather.

Several grid hopefuls have found the going too rough and called it quits but the remainder of the squad is "kunckling down" to hard work which will get tougher during the next three weeks. The opener with Windber is carded for three weeks from tonight.

Depending on what Coach Niccolai sees during today's scrimmage session is how the tempo will be set up until September 14. A favorable showing today will mean a lighter drill card but a rusty performance today will mean work, work, work starting Monday.

No Regrets That Streak's Been Snapped–Stan

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Stan Musial looked back without regret today at the snapping of his National League record for consecutive games but looked ahead to rejoining the St. Louis Cardinals for their chase of the league-leading Milwaukee Braves.

"Maybe I'll be back in four or five days," Musial said. "I hope so, but I guess I have to take it easy."

Musial, who chipped a bone and tore a muscle in his left shoulder Thursday night against Philadelphia, was out of uniform for the first time in six seasons Friday night as the Cards bowed to the Phils, 3-2.

The consecutive game streak of Musial is broken now, but the actual number played in succession won't be decided until next week.

The Man played 862 in a row before he sat out the second game of a double-header at Pittsburgh on July 21. The game was suspended by the Pennsylvania Sunday curfew law and if he makes only a token appearance next Tuesday when the game is resumed his record will jump to 895 games.

Flanagan-Jones in TV Bout Tonight

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP) — Welterweight Del Flanagan of St. Paul was a slim 7-5 favorite to beat middleweight Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers, N.Y., in a 10-round bout tonight.

Flanagan weighed in at 150, seven pounds lighter than his opponent.

A win for the St. Paul welterweight would make him a stronger contender for a shot at Carmen Basilio's title.

Jones, a veteran of 38 television fights, said he wanted a knockout in hopes it would earn him a bout with middleweight champion Ray Robinson.

JUST RESTING THIS TIME—In the strangest of all heavyweight championship fights, a befuddled Pete Rademacher rests on the ropes during one of his seven trips to the canvas at Sicks Stadium in Seattle. Making his first start as a professional, Rademacher was downed for the count in the sixth round by Champion Floyd Patterson. The champ was down once, too, in the second round.

New Eagle Evens Up MVL Title Playoffs

New Eagle evened what appears to be a red-hot seven-game series for the Mon Valley League 1957 title at 1-1 last night with a 5-4 victory over Charleroi at New Eagle's Speedway Park. They battle again tomorrow afternoon at Fayette City at 2:30 o'clock.

Lou Sepe blasted out a seventh inning homer to win the game for the down-river nine.

Prior to Sepe's blow, in the sixth inning, Vic Furiga, who pitched four-hit ball at the Charlerbians, clubbed a round-tripper inside the park to tie the count at 4-4 driving home Johnny Bewick, who had singled.

New Eagle took a 2-0 third inning lead but Charleroi came back to tie it at 4-4 in the fifth and went ahead 4-2 in the top of the sixth before Furiga's tying homer and Sepe's winning blow.

Carl Witmyer pitched for Charleroi and gave up six hits, fanning six.

In addition to the homers the only other extra base clouts were doubles by Jess Leach of New Eagle and Carmen Cappelli of the Merchants, the only extra-baser for the losers.

Tomorrow's game at Fayette City will probably find Charleroi calling on Fred Briggs and New Eagle giving the nod to Jess Leach for the mound chores.

Charleroi is using Fayette City as a "home" for the series due to the Charleroi Stadium being readied for football season and no further baseball action permitted there.

Mexicans Win LL Honors on Perfect Game

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UP)—A rags to riches team from Monterrey, Mexico, "rode the clouds" today after a teammate named Angel pitched a perfect, 4-0 victory over La Mesa, Calif., for the Little League World Series championship.

The South of the Border boys were so elated over their Cinderella sweep to the top in their first year of competition in the league that Business Manager Harold Haskins said, "they're on the clouds and haven't come down yet."

The Monterrey kids, whose diamond at home is a roped-off slum area, became the first foreign team to win the series in the 11-year history of the league.

Angel Macias, a skinny, 12-year-old right hander, made their big dream come true by turning back 18 batters in a row in the six-inning game to become the second pitcher to toss a perfect game in the series. He struck out 11, including the final three batsmen.

The only other perfect performance came when Fred Shapiro of Delaware Township, N.J., beat the Colton, Calif., team without a hit or run in last year's semifinals.

The 90-pound Macias and his teammates speak no English but he displayed plenty of it on the ball he served to the bigger, heavier La Mesa team. An ambidextrous hurler, Macias served them up right in Friday's finale.

Monterrey scored all of its runs in the fifth inning. Two singles, two walks and two La Mesa errors featured the rally.

Williams' Chances of Hitting .400 Doomed

CHICAGO (UP)—Ted Williams' chances of hitting .400 for the second time in his career appeared doomed today but he's still maintaining his lead over Mickey Mantle in the American League batting race.

Williams and Mantle each went hitless in four tries Friday night enbling the Boston Red Sox star to hold his nine-point margin over the New York Yankee ace, .382 to .373. Williams has collected only two hits in his last 14 at-bats while Mantle has one hit in his last 13.

Fan Wins Protest

NEW YORK (UP) -- A New York Giant stockholder has won his first legal move to prevent the club from moving to San Francisco. Julius November, a Brooklyn lawyer who described himself as a "dyed in the wool" Giant fan, asked for and was granted a state Supreme Court order requiring the club to show cause why it should not be restrained from making the transfer.

Lions Defeat Eagles

TOLEDO, Ohio (UP)—The bullet-like passes of quarterback Bobby Layne and the broken field running of Howard (Hopalong) Cassady helped the Detroit Lions overcome a 10-point halftime deficit to defeat the Philadelphia Eagles, 34-27, in a National Football League exhibition game here Friday night.

PNA Edges Myfords In City Softball Loop Semi-finals

Loose Fielding Spells Difference; Meet Again Monday at Ninth Street

Erratic fielding by the Myfords, who committed five errors, gave PNA just enough advantage to post an 8-7 decision in the opener of their three-game semi-finals series in the local City Softball League last night.

Monday night at Ninth Street Park they'll go at it again with PNA having a chance to advance to the final five-game title series against the Cro-Ams with another victory, the Myfords getting an opportunity to extend the series, or bow out for the '57 season.

PNA grabbed an early 5-1 lead and saw Myfords tally three times in the sixth frame to cut the count to 5-4.

The eventual winners tallied three times in the seventh when Joe Gladys, Monessen High Assistant grid mentor, doubled, Paul Petrusky reached first on an error and Les DiVitto drove them both home with a round-tripper.

Myfords came back to make it close again with three more runs in their half of the seventh on a single by Stanto, two walks, a fielder's choice, an infield single by Tony Turcaso and another fielder's choice.

"Binks" Adamczyk started on the mound for PNA and hurled good ball, giving up just four singles until losing control in the seventh when he was relieved by Paul Petrusky, who gave up the other hit, also a single.

Tony Turcaso's top-notch hurling went for naught due to the loose fielding of his Myford mates.

DiVitto with a homer and two singles and Joe Gladys with a double and single paced the winners at bat.

Grid Officials in Rules Confab Monday

Monongahela Valley football officials are reminded of a PIAA rules meeting at Brownsville High School Monday night, Secretary James Leeper of the valley arbiters group announced today.

All valley officials are invited to attend the session. Other meetings will be held in September, October and November. Dates will be announced here later.

Ed Kikla Sparks Monongahela to Legion Finals

HARRISBURG (UP) — Monongahela and Philadelphia will fight it out today for the championship of the state American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament.

The western Pennsylvania team downed Leesport 3-2 at Island Park here Friday night, while Philadelphia came from behind to win 7-4 over White Oak.

The Monongahela drive was sparked by Ed Kikla, a Pennsylvania State University bound lefthander, who held Leesport to six hits and slammed a home run over the right center field wall to give his mates a 1-0 lead in the first. Leesport got its two runs in the second, but Kikla tightened up and struck out nine men. Monongahela tied up the game in the bottom of the second and pushed across the winning run in the fifth.

Philadelphia spotted White Oak a 4-1 lead in the second inning of their game at Middletown, but came back with three runs in the third, two in the sixth and another tally in the ninth to wrap up the ball game.

Earlier in the "two down and out" tourney, Philadelphia defeated Monongahela 6-5 in 10 innings.

Logart Catches Byars, Beats Him

DETROIT (UP) — Isaac Logart said his only trouble in breezing to a 10-round decision over Walter Byars Friday night was catching Byars.

The crowd of 1,131 thought Byars, 146¼ pounds and ninth-ranked welterweight, did better against the favored Cuban, 146, but judge Jack Aspery scored it 50-38, judge Bill Appleton had it 49-36 and referee Jackie Swartz 48-38 for Logart. The United Press had it 48-40.

Logart, ranked with Tony De Marco and Gaspar Ortega as the leading contenders for Carmen Basilio's welter title, spent most of his time stalking Byars after the third round.

Byars, of Boston, could offer only scattered right hand sneak leads against the wide assortment of hooks and uppercuts which Logart used when the wild - haired Cuban cared to open up. And Logart opened up only when stung by a Byars right.

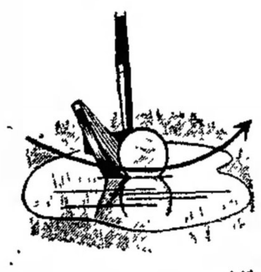
DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF



Wet Weather

With the ball nestled down in wet grass, you have yourself a very tough shot to make. To contact the ball, the clubhead must pass through some of the wet grass and water which will stick to the face of the club as contact is made. Thus the clubface grooves, which are designed to grip the ball enough to send it on its way, become clogged up and ineffective. The result? A wobbly shot — which isn't good!

This handicap to getting proper direction can seldom be entirely overcome. The best you can do is try to minimize it — and try to allow for it.

To cut down the effect of the water and grass, try to pick the shot out fairly clean — as opposed to sweeping down and through it and taking out a big divot.

Your only other hope is to try to allow as much safety margin as possible on the shot that is, always play for the fat part of the green — regardless of pin placement. Since an error is likely, try to make it on the side which you think will give you less trouble.

Dittrich Wins At Heidelberg

Bob Dittrich of Bethel Park who had won but one feature event all season, took first place on the 25th spin and then went on to race away from the top drivers of the Pittsburgh Racing Association in the 75-lap race before 6 000 fans at Heidelberg Raceway Thursday night.

There was no time on the race. Wayne Witche of Bellefonte, O., threw a wheel on the 11th lap and the event had to be stopped, forcing a restart.

Dick Bailey of Grove City, one of the PRA's leading drivers, finished second and Harold Goden of Johnstown third. Herb Scott of Texford and Dick Linder of Brookline didn't finish among the leaders.

Redlegs Snap 10-Game Losing Streak--Thanks to Our Pirates

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates were blanked, 6-0, by Cincinnati southpaw Joe Nuxhall Friday night as the Redlegs snapped a 10-game losing streak, the longest in the National League this season.

Nuxhall mixed his slider and fast ball to notch his seventh victory of the season and third over the Pirates. His lifetime record against Pittsburgh is 18-9.

Starter Bob Purkey, going for his 11th victory, went down to his 11th defeat instead.

Cincinnati scored twice in the first inning on a single by Gus Bell, a double by Frank Robinson, an error and a sacrifice fly by George Crowe. They picked up two more run in the third on a single by Nuxhall, Johnny Temple's sacrifice, a passed ball, singles by Bell and Crowe and Wally Post's double.

The other runs came in the fourth and sixth frames as the Redlegs chalked up 13 hits, including three by Nuxhall.

For Pittsburgh, Frank Thomas smashed a double in the second. Bob Skinner got singles in the fourth and ninth and Bill Mazeroski singled in the fourth.

The Pirates meet Cincinnati in the rubber contest of the three-game series at Forbes Field today with Brooks Lawrence (11-10) against Ronnie Kline (4-15).

Steelers-Browns Battle Tonight

AKRON, Ohio (P)—The Pittsburgh Steelers and the Cleveland Browns, who tied for fourth place last season in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League, meet tonight in an exhibition contest in Akron's Rubber Bowl.

Interest in the contest, which will draw an estimated 30.000 fans, centered on two former Alliance, Ohio, school teammates, Len Lawson of Pittsburgh, and Johnny Borton of Cleveland. Both are expected to quarterback their respective teams.

Denver Quint Loses

BUENOS AIRES (UP)—A Buenos Aires all-star basketball team whipped the touring Denver (Colo.) Truckers, 68-55, Friday night in an exhibition game.

Donelli Greets 57 Candidates At Columbia U.

NEW YORK (UP)—The 57 candidates for the Columbia football team under new coach Aldo (Buff) Donelli will include only eight lettermen, it was announced today.

The squad will report to Camp Columbia, Lakeside, Conn., Sept. 1 and will start two-a-day drills the following day. There will be 27 sophomores, 15 juniors and 15 seniors.

Donelli, former head coach at Boston University and Duquesne, replaces Lou Little, who retired after 27 years as head coach. Donelli's leading quarterback candidate is his son, Dick.

Eleven lettermen were graduated from the 1956 team which posted a 3-6 record to tie for sixth place with Harvard in the Ivy League.

The returning lettermen are ends Bruce Howard of Danielson, Conn. and Ron Szczepkowski of Buffalo, N.Y.; tackle Bob Satonick of Midvale, Utah, guards Gene Appel of Sharon, Pa., and captain George Pappas of Hammond, Ind.; center Don Manes of Little Rock, Ark.; and halfbacks Ed Spraker of Lenoir City, Tenn., and Brad Howard of Danielson, Conn. Outstanding sophomores include halfback Harvey Brookins of McDonald, Pa. and tackle Ed Eschenbaum of LaSalle, Ill.

Billy Pierce Returns to Winning Form Just in Time for White Sox

By FRED DOWN

Billy Pierce is back in the winning groove today just in time to lead the Chicago White Sox' last-ditch stand against the New York Yankees.

The gritty little left hander, often a slow finisher, showed he still is in mid-season form Friday night when he fired a four-hitter that gave the White Sox a 4-1 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Pierce, who held Ted Williams hitless in four tries, thus moved the White Sox to within 5½ games of the Yankees, who dropped a 10-inning, 5-4 decision to the Cleveland Indians.

The figures are still overwhelmingly against the White Sox' chances of overtaking the Yanks, but the world champions have lost three out of four in the West and could be within striking range when they invade Chicago for a three-game series Tuesday night.

Dodgers Save Chances

The Brooklyn Dodgers, meanwhile, just about saved their faint pennant hopes in the National League when they rallied for three runs in the ninth inning to top the Milwaukee Braves, 3-2. The Braves however, retained their 6½-game hold on first place when the Philadelphia Phillies scored a 3-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cincinnati Redlegs snapped a 10-game losing streak with a 6-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Giants beat the Chicago Cubs, 3-2, in 16 innings.

Pierce struck out six as he became the majors' first 17 - game winner of the year and yielded Boston's run in the fourth inning when Jackie Jensen walloped his 16th homer. The 0-for-4 horsecollar cut Williams' average to 382 but Mickey Mantle also went hitless and dropped to 373.

Ex-Yankee Gene Woodling doubled for his fourth hit of the night and drove in Bobby Avila with the winning run for the Indians after the Yankees tied the score with a three-run rally in the ninth. Dick Tomanek received credit for the victory but it was Mike Garcia who struck out Mantle to end the Yankees' ninth-inning rally. Bob Grim was the loser.

Al Kaline and Charley Maxwell hammered three - run homers to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 13-4 rout of the Washington Senators and Connie Johnson pitched a three-hitter as the Baltimore Orioles downed the Kansas City Athletics, 2-1.

Gino Cimoli singled with two out in the ninth to climax Brooklyn's rally. Don McMahon was the loser, in relief of Gene Conley. Sandy Amoros' double, a single by Charley Neal, a walk to Carl Furillo and McMahon's throwing error set the stage for Cimoli. Hank Aaron drove in both Milwaukee runs with a homer and a triple

Repulski "Rips" Cards

Harvey Haddix struck out seven and pitched a seven-hitter for his 10th win as the Phillies "ripped" the Cardinals on Rip Repulski's three runs batted in. Repulski singled home the Phillies' first run in the sixth and then delivered a two-run homer off Vinegar Bend Mizell in the eighth. Stan Musial's 895 - game playing streak went by the boards.

Joe Nuxhall came through with a four-hitter to beat the Pirates for the third time this year and enable the Redlegs to end the longest losing skein of the NL season. Nuxhall and Gus Bell led Cincinnati's 13-hit attack with three hits each as Bob Purkey suffered his 11th defeat.

Willie Mays scored from first base on Ray Jablonski's double to break up the Giants' four - homer and 14-minute marathon with the Cubs. Bob Rush was the hero in defeat, striking out 10 in the 15 1-3 innings he worked and earning the supreme compliment—a handshake from Giant manager Bill Rigney when it was all over.

Here's Breakdown Of Fight Gate

SEATTLE (UP) — Here's the breakdown on where the money went in the Pete Rademacher-Floyd Patterson bout Thursday night:

Gross Gate—$243 030.

Net Gate—$209,556.

Patterson's guarantee — $250.000 put up by Youth Unlimited, Inc.

Youth Unlimited's share of gross gate—(60 per cent)—$125.791.

Promoter Jack Hurley's share—(40 per cent)—$83,765.

Rademacher's share—nothing.

Rademacher reportedly was supposed to receive $10.000 if the fight made money, but he had promised to turn this over to Youth Unlimited. He is an employe of this organization and it is presumed they paid his training camp expenses.

Film rights — Equally split between Patterson and Youth Unlimited. Youth Unlimited hopes to break even on the promotion with their share of the film receipts.

Automatic G-E Gas Furnaces Bring You That Cheery Warmth

General Electric automatic gas furnaces, sold and installed here and throughout the Valley by the Monessen Heating & Roofing firm, 409 Schoonmaker avenue, Phone MU 4-6313, is the first step toward whole house air conditioning and that also brings you cheery warmth in winter. . . extra comfort in every room, thanks to these built-in features:

ECONOMICAL HEAT: This furnace will please you with the economy of its installation, operation and maintenance. The General Electric integrated design and dependability, plus the long life of the cast-iron "pin-point" heat exchanger, assures long term economy. A combination Main Gas Control and Pressure Regulator maintains constant pressure for steady, economical burning. The Air Shutter insures complete combustion, while accurate temperature controls to prevent fuel waste.

QUICK, UNIFORM HEAT. From a "cold start" you can have warmth in minutes in the coldest room. The large General Electric blower gently moves warm air all through the house giving you a comfortable, even temperature in every room, floor to ceiling.

SAFE HEAT. The perfectly insulated cabinet keeps heat where it belongs and makes the furnace safe to touch. All operating parts and controls are concealed inside. General Electric Gas Furnaces are approved by the American Gas Association and listed by Underwriters' Laboratories.

QUIET HEAT. You will never get crackles and bangs, when your General Electric Furnace starts and stops, that you get with an ordinary furnace. That is because General Electric uses a cast-iron heat exchanger. Quiet operation is assured, too, with the new cast-iron, slotted port burners; the rubber cushions on blower and motor; and the cabinet liner of foil-faced glass wool.

CLEAN HEAT: The flow of warm, conditioned air through your home is continuously filtered to remove dust, lint, and other foreign particles. This saves you hours of dusting every week. . . . saves the cost of frequent curtain cleaning, repainting, and wallpapering, too.

AUTOMATIC HEAT: The automatic controls are designed and built by General Electric especially for this furnace. The unit automatically starts, ignites, and stops in response to the thermostat. Smooth and reliable temperature controlled at the "touch of a finger."

SPACE-SAVING HEAT. The General Electric Furnace takes little of the space so valuable in today's modern homes. It will tuck out of the way in almost any free space and will even fit in a small closet or alcove. The unit will pass through a 29-inch doorway.

RELIABLE GENERAL ELECTRIC GAS CONTROL: The Combination Main Gas Control and Pressure Regulator maintains constant pressure for better burning. The Diaphragm Valve with aluminum body resists corrosion.

EASILY ADJUSTABLE AIR-SHUTTER regulates the flow of air for efficient combustion.

LOW INSTALLATION COST. The entire unit is factory-wired and assembled. Will fit into a minimum amount of space thus requiring little or no expenditure for special construction to house it.

DURABLE "PIN-POINT" HEAT TRANSFER SECTIONS are made of corrosion-resistant cast iron. High rate of heat transfer means quick comfort.

SENSITIVE FAN AND LIMIT CONTROL starts and stops blower automatically and limits temperature to a safe range. The built-in summer switch permits you to have air circulation in your home without heating during warm days.

DEPENDABLE SAFETY PILOT: This vital safety feature protects you against the dangers of possible flame failure.

QUIET CAST-IRON BURNERS: The crossover slots in the new slotted-port burners insure instant ignition. These new burners incinerate troublesome lint — are self-cleaning.

HEAT HOLDING INSULATION: The foil-faced glass wool muffles sound and reflects heat back into the unit.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of Lorenzo (Lawrence) Persico, who died two years ago today, August 24, 1955.
Sad and sudden was the call
Of one so dearly loved by all.
A bitter grief, a shock severe
It was to part with one so dear.
We often sit and think of you
And speak of how you died,
To think you could not say goodbye
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best
Oh, God, grant you eternal rest
Sadly missed by his Wife, Children and Grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Kontratovic, who died eight years ago tomorrow, August 25, 1949.
The way was too hard, and you were too frail,
Dear mother, the struggle to win,
So God sent the Angel of Death to invite
You to Heaven and welcome you in
You're gone and our hearts will grieve over your loss,
But we'd never recall you to pain.
Someday we too, will be sent for, and you
Will be with us, dear mother, again
Sadly missed by Husband, Children and Grandchildren.

In loving memory of my dear father, Anthony Kachmarik, Sr., who died five years ago tomorrow, August 25, 1952.
Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Death leaves a heartache no one can heal;
Loved dearly in life and living yet
In the hearts of the ones who will never forget.
Sadly missed by his daughter, Mrs. Zeila Sutovich

Reds Build in Egypt

LONDON (UP) — Prague Radio said today that Communist Czechoslovakia is building "several industrial plants" in Egypt. The broadcast said one of the plants would be for production of steel oil drums.

WANTS TO REST IN PEACE—Alva L. Arnold (right) of Massillon, O., is 78 and enjoying good health, but when he passes on he wants to rest in peace without any disturbance from the elements. So he is digging his own grave and installing a vault, which he built himself, and which, he says, will withstand thousands of years of underground wear. Helping him is a friend, Theo Flueckiger.

U. S. Hoping for Win In Plowing Contest

By BERNERD H. BUTTLER

PEEBLES, Ohio (UP)—America's hopes of winning her first world plowing championship in the 'World's Fair of Agriculture" here next month rest on the skill of a farmer from Ohio and one from Illinois.

Lawrence (Lou) Goettemoeller, Mercer County, Ohio, and John Daniels, Mulberry Grove, Ill., will be teamed in the title event against championship plowing teams from 13 foreign countries.

The plowing championship is held in conjunction with the World Conservation Exposition, Sept. 17-20.

The four - day exposition, described as the "World's Fair of Agriculture," is expected to attract some 300,000 persons.

An airport has been built to accomodate an air show and those farmers who will fly their planes to the exposition. Special trains from Cincinnati, 40 miles away, will be used to bring the crowds to this rural southern Ohio area.

Both U.S. Titlists

The Ohioan is America's champion level land plowsman while the Illinois farmer is the contour champion. Goettemoeller and Daniels won their national titles and the right to represent the United States in the world contest in he national matches in Iowa last year.

This will be the first time in the five-year history of the matches that the world contest has been held on American soil. Previous contests were in Canada, Ireland, Sweden and England.

A new champion was assured this year. Hugh Barr, of North Ireland, three-time world winner, has retired. Barr was expected, however, to be on hand to coach.

Americans never have finished better than next to last in the world event. The 1957 contest will be Goettemoeller's last attempt at the title.

A champion plowman for 30 years, Goettemoeller said that win or lose, he will not compete again for the Golden Plow Trophy, symbol of world supremacy in the art of plowmanship.

Nations to be represented in the agricultural "tournament," in addition to the United States, are Canada, Finland, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, France, Great Britain, North Ireland, West Germany, New Zealand and, for the first time, Italy.

Cairn Dedicated

Each two-man team will bring a stone engraved with its country's name to place in the "Cairn of Peace" to be dedicated at the Peebels High School grounds Sept. 19. The cairn will be topped by a golden replica of the trophy, an 18th Century walking plow mounted on two wheels.

The first "Cairn of Peace" was dedicated in 1953 at Coburg, Canada, the scene of the first world plowing contest. The cairns have been dedicated since at the sites of each of the contests.

The champions from 14 nations represented will display their skill with tractors and plows on a 2,500-acre, 16-farm site loaned by area farmers.

Each contestant must plow one plot of stubble land and one plot of grassland. They will be judged on straightness and uniformity of furrows, burying of grass and stubble, packing, proper depth and other points of finesse.

Victor Gets Trophy

To the victor goes the Golden Plow Trophy to keep for one year, along with a miniature replica as a memento of the occasion. The trophy has a Latin inscription meaning: "Let Peace Cultivate The Fields."

The 1,500 residents of Peebles have been getting ready for the exposition and plowing matches for three years.

Preparations include a 3,000-foot airstrip carved out of the rolling hillsides to accommodate an Air Force exhibit, jet and helicopter demonstrations, Flying Farmers' Day events, and the visitors who will be arriving in their own light planes.

Other Events Planned

Other highlights of the exposition include appearance of the world famous 102-piece Army Field Band, a New York style show, sheep dog trials, wagon tours of the 41-mile area, exhibits on practical land use and a master plowmen's banquet.

Many dignitaries, including U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson and Ohio Gov. C. William O'Neill, will visit the exposition and attend the plowing matches.

World Friendship Circle in Meeting at Miller Ranch

Seventeen members and two guests attended the August meeting of the World Friendship Circle of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church at the Miller Ranch Thursday evening.

Mrs. Peggie Nesbit was the leader, using as her topic, "No Forty Hour Week." This topic told how our missionaries spend their time, and pointed out the responsibilities of the women of the United Lutheran Church. Those having a part in the program were as follows:

Mrs. Wanda Calhoun, Mrs. Vera Gephart, Mrs. Sophia Rieser, Gladys Urinsco, Esther Lux, Geraldine Monath, Betty Rak, Mrs. Kay Johnson, Jean Rak, Mrs. Marion Clapsaddle, Mrs. Marvis Lenk, Mrs. Evelyn Antoszyk, and Mrs. Dorothy Zumbro. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Janet Farmer.

Gladys Urinsco conducted a special "thank offering" service, at which time the quarterly thank offering was received.

The business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Dorothy Zumbro. Three members of the Circle are planning to attend the convention of The Pittsburgh Synod United Lutheran Church Woman at Thiel College on August 27 and 28.

Several important dates and events were announced at the meeting. The promotional dinner will be held at the First Lutheran Church in Greensburg on Sept. 18 at 6:15 p. m. Christie Zimmerman, on leave from India, will be the speaker.

A mission study sharing session will be held at Zion Church, Harrolds, R. D. 6, Greensburg on Sunday, Sept. 8 from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m.

On Tuesday, Sept. 3 a post assembly rally for women will be held at Zion Church in Johnstown at 2:30 p. m. There will be several overseas guests.

The conference convention will be held at St. Mark's in Jeannette on Thursday, Oct. 10. There will be morning and afternoon sessions.

High School Band Plans Rehearsals

The West Newton High School Band will begin daily rehearsals Monday morning at 9 a. m. at the high school.

All former members and prospective members are expected to be present for the initial rehearsal, William Fleming, director of music in the local schools, announced.

The first public appearance of the band will be at the opening game of the football season.

Church School In Meeting at Parish House

The Church School Association of Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church held its regular monthly meeting in the parish house Tuesday evening. The leader was Mrs. Dorothy Specht, with the topic, "Fit Your Method to Your Objective."

The business, which was conducted by Edward Boes, was opened with prayer. The group voted to make a donation to the Lutheran Service Society, and to purchase Bibles for the youngsters who will be promoted from the primary department into the junior department, and to purchase Christian Youth Hymnals for those being promoted from the junior into the intermediate department.

The list of recommendations and appointments for the next year was read and approved by the Association. The group will hold its annual dinner in the parish house on September 17 at 6:30 p. m.

Rally Day and Promotion Sunday will be held in the Sunday Schools at the morning services on Sunday, September 29.

Sunday, Sept. 22 will be set aside as Youth Sunday for the Church service.

Thank you cards were received from the Harold Crosslands and the Gene Lenks.

Getting Child Used to Glasses

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Few persons actually like to wear glasses or eye patches. Yet those who have to wear them, make the best of it because they realize that such things are designed to help their vision.

With a small child, however, it's usually a little more difficult problem. You can't just tell him that he must wear glasses or a patch because it's good for him. You've got to use psychology.

If glasses are prescribed for a very young child, you can help him get used to them by putting his glasses on as you dress him each morning.

Remove them when you undress him at bedtime. In this way he should soon learn to accept the glasses just as he accepts clothing. In short, you help him establish a habit.

If your youngster is older when he begins wearing glasses, be sure to compliment him on how well he looks.

If he admires a playmate who also wears glasses, or perhaps a bespectacled television or movie star — they seem to be pretty much of a trade-mark for comedians these days — you can point out that he now has glasses just like they have.

In many cases of crossed-eyes, a patch is recommended worn over the good eye to force mor use of the poor eye. If this is suggested for your child, you've got to remain cheerful and maintain a casual atiitude about his "turned eye"

When he questions you about his patch and the need for it, give him truthful answers. Don't, however, emphasize the point.

The American Association of Orthoptic Technicians advises parents to tell their children that the "turned eye" is lazy and that the doctor is going to help them make it grow strong.

Should a well-meaning but unthinking person stop your youngster on the street to inquire why he is wearing the patch, the Association suggests he answer:

"It's to make my eye strong and well like the other one."

Question and Answer

A Reader: I took some aureomycin for pneumonia for about two weeks, then developed diarrhea and cramps in my stomach. These symptoms have persisted for the last five months.

Answer: It would seem you have developed some form of sensitivity to aureomycin. This is not too uncommon.

Usually this condition will pass with time, but the giving of liver injections and vitamin B-12 is somdtimes of help.

You should seek the advice of your doctor.

Asian Flu Problems To Be Aired on TV

KDKA-TV announced today their plans for a special, 30-minute public service program dealing with the much discussed Asian Flu, to be shown on Channel 2 at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

In making the announcement of the program, "The Silent Invader," Jerome R. Reeves, general manager of KDKA-TV, stated that this marks the first time that any television station in the country has produced a special program concerning the threat.

Appearing on the program will be four distinguished members of the medical profession:

Dr. Leroy E. Burney, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service, will give a round-up of the Asian influenza story, both here and abroad.

Dr. James A. Crabtree, associate dean of the University of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health, will explain the epidemiology of Asian influenza, how it started in China and has since spread throughout the world, including the seeding and gradual increase of it in this country during June, July and August.

Dr. Dorland J. Davis, associate director in charge of Research, National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, U. S. Public Health Service, will explain just what the influenza virus is, how this Asian type relates to other strains, and the vaccine story.

Dr. George F. Lull, secretary and general manager of the American Medical Association, will explain what the medical profession is doing on a national scale to prepare for the probable epidemic of Asian Influenza. He will also discuss the cooperative plans of the American Medical Association and the U. S. Public Health Service in the areas of public information and public education.

Be Sure Wiring Is Good

Electric shock is a number one home hazard. Electricity is invaluable and safe but it must be used correctly and kept in its place, reminds Mrs. Barbara Pratt, assistant extension home economist, Westmoreland County.

If wiring is poor or insulation is defective, some current may travel through a person's body if he touches the metal frame of an appliance switch, lamp socket, water pipe, radiator, or damp surface. Perspiration and damp clothing and shoes increase this hazard.

Work areas where electric appliances are used should be kept as free from moisture as possible. In a basement laundry or workshop, take extra precautions. Ground all large appliances — a cold water pipe serves well for this.

Portable electric appliances should never be plugged in a kitchen, bathroom or laundry near where there is a possibility of touching the appliance and water at the same time. Remember — an appliance may be safe today and unsafe tomorrow. Insulation deteriorates because of heat and may suddenly break down.

A portable appliance that is plugged in but not turned on can be a source of danger, too. Radios, heaters, or extension cords are in this class. They may be pulled or fall into a tub or sink of water and cause fatal electric shock.

Danger, is great, too, with appliances used out of doors, such as electric power mowers, hedge trimmers, saws, and polishers. Be sure these appliances have the UL label for out-of-door use. The regular UL label indicates electric equipment has passed minimum safety requirements. But this doesn't offer protection against misuse, that's up to you.

Wood Paneling Secret in Keeping Husbands Home

Women have discovered a secret allure for keeping husbands home. They are having the family room paneled in friendly, relaxing wood.

Since most exllusive men's clubs, a favorite hangout of some husbands, are wood paneled, the smart wife has reasoned she must compete, if she wants to see more of hubby during waking hours.

The male behavior being what it is — psychologists supplying the words — the little lady may have an idea, the conservative West Coast Lumbermen's Association remarks with a mischievous smile.

The lumbermen, always trying to be helpful, suggest another asset value of wood-paneled living rooms. The relaxing atmosphere created, say these worthy gents, may be so complete that the too-tightly-wound up husband may not have to take tranquillity pills in the future.

All of which is a leadup to something else, a suggestion by these west coast tall timber boys of the kind of wood which has the highest built-in tranquillity factor. May they suggest, and they do, Douglas fir for beauty and friendliness, west coast hemlock for blond loveliness, or western red cedar for the old-shoe homeliness of calico and gingham.

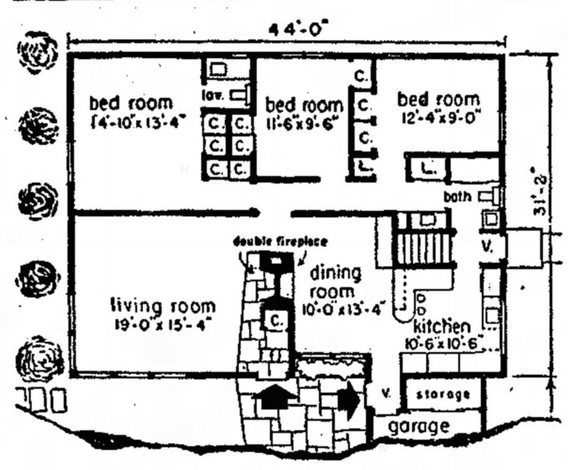
Interested in Novel Low-Cost Bed Headboard?

Interested in a novel, attractive, low-cost bed headboard? Here's an idea that has all those features and is in step with the current return of louver doors and shutters to smart modern interiors.

Use an ordinary stock shutter, slightly longer than the width of the bed (a double-bed mattress is 54 inches wide). Attach the shutter to the spring frame by metal braces, or by a wood framework. The shutter also can be screwed or bolted to the wall.

Stock shutters generally are made of ponderosa pine, an almost-white wood that is an excellent base for any paint or stain-and-varnish finish that you need to go with the bedroom decor.

A variation of this idea is to use a shutter as a headboard for a youth bed, and a pair of shutters for the sides, to keep the youngster from falling out. Saw the side shutters in half and hinge the sections together and to the headboard so they swing back as shown in the sketch. At night, each side is moored to the bed with a hook-and-eye.



Neat, Uncomplicated House Is Inexpensive

Neat, uncomplicated house design usually goes hand in hand with low cost. Take, for example, this modern 3-bedroom, 1½-bathroom ranch house tailored for leisurely indoor and outdoor living.

Designed by architect Rudolph A. Matern, Jamaica, N. Y., the house has a 24-foot-long porch with connecting doorways to the living room, dining room, kitchen, and garage. The porch opens on an 18 by 20-foot patio, an ideal arrangement for family dining, informal entertaining, or children's recreation.

Framing for the house has been simplified without any loss of livability or eye appeal. The main roof section, of conventional gable construction, has a gentle slope. It is covered with an attractive blend of light-color asphalt shingles. The roof sets the color scheme for the exterior of the house. The siding is in a harmonizing shade and the window trim repeats the roof color.

There are two service entrances to the house, one at each end of the kitchen. In conjunction with the main entrance and the short hall into which it leads, these provide a good traffic pattern.

The three bedrooms extend across the rear of the house. The hallway separating the living and sleeping areas serves well as a sound barrier. The L-shaped kitchen is separated from the dining room by a breakfast bar.

The house can be constructed with or without a basement.

Thick mineral wool insulation acts as a heat barrier to keep winter warmth in the house and summer heat out. It makes possible the installation of a smaller, less expensive central air-conditioning system and reduces the day-to-day cost of operating it as well as the cost of heating fuel.

Additional information, blueprints and specifications can be obtained from Rudolph A. Matern, 90-04 161 3 st St., Jamaica 32, L.I., N. Y. Refer to plan No. 9399.

Storage Along Bedroom Walls

If you want bedrooms that are insulated against noises from the rest of the house, then utilize walls nearest living areas for wall storage facilities.

The West Coast Lumbermen's Association says these built-in wardrobe and wall storage units make an ideal noise insulator.

?? QUESTIONS and ANSWERS ??

Q — I'm planning to varnish some cabinets. How can I avoid a lot of hard rubbing and polishing to remove the air bubbles that will form on the surfaces?

A — Try thinning the varnish with one part turpentine to five parts varnish. Then stir it—don't shake it—for 10 or 15 minutes. Let it stand for 24 hours to allow the varnish and turpentine to completely flow together. After this, the varnish should flow on without air bubbles.

Q — How can I keep screws from coming loose and popping out of soft wood from the weight of the fixtures I've attached to the wood?

A — Make small starter holes and fill them with thick glue. The screws will then force the glue into the surrounding wood fibres and voids, giving the wood increased hardness and resistance to screw pull-outs.

Q — The room we're planning to add to our home will have a roof that is almost flat. The house was recently reroofed with asphalt shingles. Can we use asphalt shingles on the addition?

A — Asphalt shingles can be applied to roofs that slope as little as two inches per horizontal foot. A new technique makes use of special precautions that protect the roof against leaks which might otherwise develop because of the relatively low pitch. Before starting on your guest room, check with your roofing contractor to make sure your plans call for a roof with at least the minimum two-inch slope.

Q — My wife and I often have admired the panel doors we've seen used in television plays. How can we obtain doors like these for our home?

A — Television set designers use many panel doors of ponderosa pine in their sets because of the three-dimensional effect of paneling. Usually, these doors are of a standard design that can be obtained from the local lumber dealer. Pine panel doors are popular with home owners because of their natural beauty, the ease with which they can be painted and their resistance to warping.
